34 WON'T WORK OR MOVE, GO TO JAIL; 300 IDLERS IN EXILE

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 6 .- The order to go to work, quit the city or go to jail, issued last week by the City Council here, has resulted in an exodus of 300 idlers and the sending of thirty-four men to jail for ten days each.

At the end of ten days if those in jail do not go to work or ge out of town they will be sent to work on the roads for thirty days.

There are about 500 seamen idle in Newport News. The authori ties are not enforcing the "go to work or leave town" order on them as a body, since many are honestly seeking work and are unable to find it. They are without food or a place to sleep and they are being cared for by welfare organizations.

There have been about ten cases where seamen refused to accept positions with the idle fleet on Shipping Board vessels at Claremont. They claimed the Shipping Board was not paying the union scale and they would starve rather than work for wages below the scale.

Following the police order most of these seamen moved up the James River to Claremont and are loafing there. There have been a number of robberies reported from Claremont and also it is reported that a number of the wooden ships lying in the James River off that town have been robbed of brass fixtures and other things of value.

Those in Newport News are for the most part willing to work A ship arrived in port last week and put in a request for five seamen. When the news spread there were eighty men applying for the five positions within a few hours.
